Average of About 735 a Month Expiring

Drivers in Fayette County got another reminder today from Howard Allen, deputy registrar, to check their driver's licenses to see if they have expired.

Figures show that an average of 735 licenses a month are expiring under a new law which makes the expiration date the birthday of the driver.

There were 8,831 licenses issued in the county last year, but only 3,406 license holders have come into the Fayette County Auditor's Office on South Main Street to have them renewed in the four and a half months since Sept. 5.

Although there is a 90-day grace period after a person's birthday in which to have the license renewed, Mr. Allen warns that the license actually expires on the birthday and that the person isn't legally allowed to drive on the old permit.

If the 90-day grace period runs out, the permit cannot be renewed, and the holder must appear before the state board, which meets every Wednesday at the county garage, and pass an examination before another permit is issued.

Allen has been authorized by the general assembly to notify license holders 15 days before their birthday that their licenses will become due.

Another point mentioned by Allen is that a person cannot get his license renewed until 30 days before the date of birth.

Using the 1950 figure of 8,831 licenses and dividing that by the number of months in the year there are an average of 735 licenses a month which become due. Mr. Allen figures Fayette County is ahead of schedule by 116 licenses but he adds, the figures are on an average and don't quite tell the truth.

More Drivers Are Cited to Court

Police picked up two additional traffic violators over Thursday, and two cases were cited to police court by state highway patrolmen.

Donald E. Weaver, 25, Columbus, posted $15 bond after police stopped him while doing 50 miles on Columbus Avenue.

The state highway patrol arrested Elmer Heinze, 40, Cincinnati, for excessive speed on U. S. 62, and he posted $15 bail.

The patrol also picked up Victor Myers, Columbus, for allegedly driving 75 miles on the Columbus Road. He posted $15 bail.

Good Hope School Building Entered

Burglars, apparently the same gang which has been breaking into school buildings in this part of Ohio over a period of several years, visited the Wayne Township High School building at Good Hope, Thursday night.

Belief was expressed by Supt. Harold Thomas that the burglars entered by a window, which had not been locked and left the same way.

A small steel strong box was chiseled open and all the burglars obtained was $2 in change.

Papers littered the floor of the superintendent's office, and a file case, which was not locked, was jimmied.

Sheriff Orland Hays was called to investigate.

Asian group, wants its resolution acted on first. He argued yesterday that a reported link in hostilities on the Korean front should be seized by the UN as a peace-making opportunity.

Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb immediately agreed that the conference idea should have priority although he said he would generally support provisions of the U. S. proposal except for a committee to study sanctions against Red China.

Jebb upheld the contentions of British Prime Minister Attlee earlier this week that the UN should not take any step now that would call for sanctions against Communist China as an aggressor.

New Zealand's Sir Carl Berendsen was emphatically caustic in demanding that Red China should be named outright and quickly as an aggressor but he supported the British viewpoint that the UN should go slow on invoking sanctions.

The British delegate again argued that Communist China had the right to occupy China's seat in the UN and its veto-power place in the security council.

PRESIDENT REASSURING
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—(AP)—Diplomatic officials expressed hope today President Truman's latest policy statement on Red China would reassure other nations about American aims in the Far East.

Although the president personally branded the Chinese Communists as aggressors, he also in effect ruled out any hasty punitive action against them.

"Obviously," Mr. Truman told his news conference yesterday, "this is no time for rash or unwise action. This is a time for clear thinking and firmness."

Britain particularly and the European Allies of the United States generally have been apprehensive lest this country take, or insist upon the United Nations taking, steps against the Chinese Communists which would bring on a general war in the Far East.

Along with his note of caution, which administration officials said would apply to Americans favoring drastic measures against the Chinese Reds, Mr. Truman also sought to remove any doubt which might exist here or abroad about the firmness of U. S. policy for branding the Red Chinese as aggressors in Korea.

He declared the views of the United States on this point "have the solid support of the executive, the Congress and the people."

"Each member of the United Nations must make its own decision on this issue," he said, "for my part, I believe in calling an aggressor an aggressor." He added, that the question "of what can and should be done about the aggression in Korea of course must be discussed with all other friendly nations."

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—(AP)—The defense department has made a grand mess of telling college students how they can enlist in the service of their choice before being drafted into the army.

That mess now is in the process of being cleaned up and soon perhaps the defense department will have worked out a way to get itself off the hook and ease the minds of students and parents.

This is an explanation of what's happened:

The first news a young man gets from his draft board is a questionnaire. When he fills that out, the board puts him in a certain classification, at least temporarily.

Say Jones is single, no dependents, and not a veteran, he's placed in 1-A. Sometime later he's ordered to report for a physical examination. This is called the "pre-induction physical."

Say Jones passes that all right. Then he's permanently placed in class 1-A by his board. Some time later he's ordered to report for induction into the armed forces. Which means being drafted.

Notice that there's a difference between being ordered to report for a "pre-induction physical" and being ordered to report for "induction."

Now under the draft law, passed June 24, 1948, no one is permitted to enlist in any branch of the service after he has received his induction notice.

(This was intended to prevent youths waiting till they were actually about to be drafted into the army and then suddenly enlisting in the air force or navy, which they might like better.)

But under the law, also, the induction of a college student is postponed by his board until he has finished the college year in which he received his induction notice.

Some months ago the various branches of the service agreed among themselves that none of them would accept as a volunteer a college student once he had received his "pre-induction physical" notice.

As a result, a number of students have been faced with the problem of dropping out of college--when they believed they were going to get a "pre-induction physical" notice--to enlist in the branch of the service they preferred before their draft-free college year was up.

They've been doing so, knowing that if they waited for the pre-induction physical they would -- if they passed the exam--be inducted into the army at the end of their school year.

There's been a lot of pressure on the defense department around the country to do something about this--to make it unnecessary for students to drop out of school before their draft-free year was over to enlist in some preferred branch of the armed forces.

On Jan. 19 the defense department came up with what it seemed to think was a solution. It abandoned the old policy of barring enlistment by a man who's received his pre-induction physical notice.

The defense department issued a statement on its new policy, saying:

"The new policy provides that students enrolled in college or universities and thus automatically entitled to deferment from the school year in which they receive their induction notices shall be allowed, to the extent of available openings in each service, to enlist in the service of their choice at any time in the two-months immediately preceding the final month of their school year."

Note that this statement didn't say anything about pre-induction physical notice. It said "... the school year in which they receive their induction notice."

But--the law positively says no one can enlist in any branch of the service after receiving his induction notice. In short, this new statement from the defense department seemed to be--but it was vague and weasel-worded -- in direct conflict with the law.

Thousands of inquiries have poured into Washington, asking for clarification on this. This write-

Seniors in County To Take Scholarship Tests

Approximately 54 seniors from the five high schools in the county will take general scholarship tests in the library of the Washington C. H. High School Feb. 2. The group will include 12 students who will take the agriculture test.

The general scholarship tests are scheduled to begin at 8:30 A. M., with the agriculture tests starting at 1 P. M. The scholarship test takes about two and a half hours to complete, with one half hour being given for each of the five different divisions of the test.

Any student in the upper 40 percent of the 1950-51 graduating class is eligible, but other seniors can take the tests on the recommendation of their principal.

The tests are designed primarily to help show students their chances of success in college.

J. W. Hilly was selected to head the committee by Dr. Ray G. Wood, director of the scholarship tests. The committee includes: G.

er has been told the defense department is trying to find some way of doing that.

It could be clarified, possibly, in three ways:

1. The defense department could admit it made a mistake.
2. The defense department could ask Congress to change the law.
3. Or the president might be able, under his special powers, to straighten out the conflict between the statement and the law.

Meanwhile, no draft board in this country has yet been told to pay any attention to this statement from the Pentagon. And almost certainly none will be told until the confusion is straightened out.

Sexton to have charge of coordinating health and sanitation agencies, personnel and facilities for civilian defense purposes.

Preparation for Disasters
Each district health officer for the state department is now contacting those named by county defense directors relative to dealing with the problems which each county may face, so as to be ready for any disaster or emergency which arises.

Dr. Savage also conferred with Sexton briefly as to what is being done here along these lines in the civilian defense effort.

The whole program of emergency housing and hospitalization facilities, organization of home nursing classes, first aid training, and methods of reaching, moving and properly placing casualty cases, was discussed at length. Storage for medical and other supplies and methods for food protection were also touched upon in the Court House conference.

Details on plans for all these matters will be made public from time to time, as they develop, it was announced.

Pensyl states that the doctors and nurses are already organized to handle emergency matters and to cooperate with other civilian defense agencies as needed in health, hospitalization and sanitation plans. Each of these groups have their own directing committees.

They claim that with their organization they can meet the budgets of additional groups that might join the Chest. In fact, they point out that the Chest could probably raise more money than some of the organizations get in their separate drives.

The national Community Chest organization stated: "No Chest has ever reported to the national association that it raised less than the agencies secured by independent appeals."

But leaders of the now independent organizations claim that by conducting separate drives they are able to tell the story of how their money is spent more effectively.

They claim that their efforts in conducting the separate campaigns are not wasted.

Want "Big" Groups In

On the other hand, the Community Chest leaders say that both considerable time and money can be saved by lumping all the agencies under one banner.

At the present time the nine agencies which participate in the benefits of the Chest here are: Associated Service (USO), Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls, Community Activity Fund, 4-H Club Camp, Mental Health Association, Ministerial Association, Salvation Army and YWCA.

Some of those who criticize the Chest here claim they object to giving to the Chest because it does

Notice to Citizens of Jeffersonville, Ohio

A Code of Ordinances adopted on January 2, 1951 by the Council of the Village of Jeffersonville, provides that it is unlawful for any person other than Street Commissioner, Village Engineer, or the authorized employees or agents of either, to make any opening in any street, alley, sidewalk or public way of the Village unless a permit to make such opening shall have been obtained from the Mayor. Sec. 28.4

ALSO

It shall be unlawful for any person to dump, cause to be dumped or permit to be dumped on any publicly or privately owned land or water in the Village, any paper, brush, rubbish, tin cans, vegetation, garbage or refuse of any kind, without first having obtained a written license from the Mayor so to do. not have any of the "big" groups in it. They would like to see such an organization as the Red Cross, which strongly fights joining the Chest, lined up. Last year the Red Cross budget was $9,500.

In the two years the Chest has been functioning here, it has been able to pay off the participating agencies up to the full 100 percent of the amounts they asked.

During the first year the goal here was $15,000, of which $14,200 was raised, but all the agencies received their full amounts. The goal was set high purposely since the Chest leaders wanted to insure full payment of the participating agencies.

In its second year the goal of $12,500 was oversubscribed by the amount of $468.49. A full report on the year's contributions and expenditures will be made at the annual meeting on Monday.

The Community Chest was started here through the efforts of the Young Business Men.

UN Losing Capacity To Reach Decision

If all the verbiage spilled out on the floor of the UN during the Korean War were soaked up in a sponge, it wouldn't bring back a single American life lost in the hills around Chungju. The plain fact is that the UN today is not even an effective debating society, because it has lost the capacity to reach a decision.

The Security Council, intended originally to be the executive agency of the UN, has been rendered meaningless by the Russian veto technique. The General Assembly has become equally ridiculous because the small nations are teaching the big boys that they can trade their votes for major concessions just as smartly as their former mentors. Beyond these facts, it is evident that there is no emerging personality in the UN who can furnish moral leadership to the world. Nehru of India was regarded as a possible key man, but he has been overwhelmed by political considerations affecting his own country and has used his neutrality as a weapon rather than as a flaming torch.

Net result—UN countries are letting the United States and Russia run the show. They have sent so few troops to Korea that it is only a fiction to call them a UN army. China is the big test. If the UN seats a Red Chinese delegation, it will be congratulating a regime which has defied UN authority. The League of Nations died of a disease no more virulent.

Proved by Test

Beyond all possibility of convincing disparagement by the propaganda of the trucking industry, tests conducted in Maryland showed that big trucks cause disproportionate damage to roads. The test was sponsored by 16 eastern states and the United States Bureau of Public Roads.

Trucks of varying sizes and loads passed thousands of times over stretches of pavement. The slabs were checked each day. In four months, it was found that 96 percent of the slabs under 44,800-pound tandem-axle loads were seriously cracked, as compared to only 27 percent of the slabs used for the 32,000-pound axle test loads.

This "proved nothing," snorted a spokesman for the American Trucking Association. He said the soil was poor and washed out, causing the cracks. But there had also been soil tests. The soil under the two sections was uniform, and the subgrade was typical of the soils underlying much of the nation's concrete pavement.

The tests proved something to Governor Lausche of Ohio, who has urged his legislature to increase truck fees. They proved something to Governor Dewey of New York, who is examining the possibility of high truck fees. In fact, it might be said that the trend toward more realistic truck taxation is almost nation-wide, and about time, too.

American Valor

Korean dispatches reveal that American youths in the armed forces over there have changed in a few weeks from inexperienced, soft-living boys to hardened, professional soldiers. They are tough, cool, efficient and dangerous. This transformation has come much more quickly than in World War II because of stark necessity.

That is about the way Americans have always been. In the days when this race of people lived the hard life of pioneer farmers, plainsmen, woodsmen and Indian fighters, they had physical condition right off the bat. Those ancestors performed prodigious physical feats as a matter of course.

Those worrying about American "softness" prior to World War II were disillusioned by Bataan, Guadalcanal and a hundred battles in Europe. Sometimes a high standard of living, makes Americans appear pudgy, and even bone-lazy, but as a people we always rise to the occasion and meet the demands that confront us.

You Feel Naked in Spotter Planes

By Bill Barnard
(Substituting for HAL BOYLE)

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA—(P)—There are patched bullet holes in every one of the 15 little artillery liaison planes parked on the short and very rough Korean airstrip.

A lieutenant, one of the men who flies these planes to call the shots for the artillery, said: "You have an extremely naked feeling when you're low over enemy territory in one of these jobs."

He is Lt. Moses Lewis of Emporia, Kas., a longtime resident of Kansas City. Lewis is typical of the artillery liaison pilots at this airstrip. All are veterans of the second world war. All have a tremendous number of missions over enemy lines—from 200 to 300.

The liaison pilots help seek out targets for artillery and then hover over the targets and direct the fire.

"Our little planes are unarmed but they can call in more fire-power than a battle ship," said Capt. Troy B. Hammons of Tacoma, Wash. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hammons of Canyon, Tex.

"You can hear it when the enemy is cracking away at you with rifles," Hammons added.

Maj. Robert L. Hoffman of Portsmouth, Ohio, said, "Our men fly on days when air force planes are grounded—even when it is snowing and the visibility is terrible. I've seen them come in for landings with their heads sticking out the side window."

"Our fields are always unlighted," said Capt. Robert W. Kolb of 610 Doolittle Road, Fayetteville, N. C.

"The thing we sweat out most is getting all our planes in before dark. That and the terrain," said Lt. Robert J. Teitelbaum of 916 West Elm St., Lima, Ohio.

"We don't wear a parachute and I know of no other country that suffers like this one from a lack of forced landing spots. This country we fly over is really rugged."

Come along with Teitelbaum on a mission into enemy territory. The plane is splashed with mud and it obviously has been hard used. The temperature is five degrees below zero as you take off and there is no comfort in the small unheated cabin.

Once aloft, the cabin door keeps coming open in spite of the fact that an old strip of inner tube is wound around the handle to hold it shut.

For an hour you skim the frosted ridges and glide down canyons, hunting for signs of enemy. Then the lieutenant begins a job of directing artillery fire on a village.

He chatters directions into his microphone for listening artillery men.

Then, through your earphones, you hear an artilleryman say, "It's on the way."

"Roger," Teitelbaum says.

Twelve seconds later the shell reaches the village. You have been flying above and a geyser of snow and smoke shoots up from a rice paddy.

The pilot gives the artilleryman a correction of the range and the next shell crashes nearer a dwelling. The third shell is a direct hit on one of the thatched roof huts, demolishing it. For 30 minutes the firing continues and the shells are really on the mark.

Back at the airstrip you meet other men who, like Teitelbaum, double in artillery liaison work and act as couriers for an army division.

Where Does United States Stand?

By George Sokolsky

A nation has to face up with reality sooner or later. We can wander in a miasma of hopes and wishes, but sooner or later we come up slap-bang against cold facts. No twisting and squirming helps.

No matter how much we talk about what we need to do in Europe, we are actually fighting in Asia. Americans are being killed there. Our troops have been at it since June 25, six months of heart-breaking, mind-searing, deadly fighting. Many have been killed; many are permanently disabled. I recently saw a preview of a motion picture, "Steel Helmet," which, with rare realism, describes our Korean war as a fact.

While we sit comfortably ruminating on what General Eisenhower may or may not succeed in doing in Europe, General MacArthur is actually, day by day, hour by hour, facing a merciless and formidable foe. Nor is it possible to forget Korea, while we wait for Eisenhower to make his deals in Europe. There is no waiting time while our boys are being killed.

Maybe we should never have gone into Korea! Maybe we should, in humiliation and abjectly, cut our losses there and get out! Maybe we should recognize the Soviet world as our masters!

Is not all that academic? The fact is that we are in Korea and that we cannot accept the indignity of humiliation and defeat without suffering diplomatically and economically throughout the world. A licked nation has no standing. Nor can we long remain an independent people if we accept the Soviets as our masters.

Therefore, Dean Acheson has taken the correct step when he rejected the counter-terms of Soviet China in the matter of the cease-fire. Their counter-terms involve total humiliation for the United States. They are insulting terms -- the offer of a conqueror to a defeated foe who is tolerated.

Our government has no alternative but to acknowledge that Soviet China is an enemy nation making war upon the United States. That nation has rejected every effort on our part to meet them three-quarters of the way. They demand total humiliation.

If the United Nations deserts the United States at this point, there is nothing for Congress to do but to abrogate the treaty which makes us a party to the United Nations charter.

Therefore, the next step is up to the United Nations. Either that body declares Soviet China to be an aggressor or it denounces it as a cowardly, unworthy of our membership. It seems to me that those are the alternatives.

True, if the United States abandons the United Nations, that parliament of states would have little reason for existence. Nevertheless, it would be an interesting legal point as to whether they could not, in such circumstances, continue to meet in New York. They are housed in this city by the terms of contracts with the government of the United States and the state of New York, fully covered by acts of federal Congress and the New York state legislature.

Would our withdrawal from the United Nations affect those contracts? One of the clauses of the contract with the government of the United States guarantees to those who have business with the United Nations free access to it. That includes spies and saboteurs if they have the proper credentials. The United States is not the judge of the credentials, although such agents of foreign governments must live in our cities and move about in them.

In our present troubles with Soviet Russia and Soviet China this can become tremendously important whether we remain in the United Nations or withdraw from it. Thousands of Europeans and Asians, in one way or another, have proper business with the United Nations who may, as a sideline, have other highly improper business in the United States. How are we protecting ourselves from them? How many agents do the Soviet countries have in the United States at this moment?

Here it is only five years since the San Francisco conference and already it is faced by a crisis which means life or death for that body. Such is the destiny of all human institutions that are devised in cunning and perpetrated by appeasement.

A nation, like a man, must live with dignity and decency -- or go under morally.

Diet and Health

Hardening Arteries May Cause Leg Pain

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Hardening of the arteries, so common among older people, brings with it many problems. When the arteries of the legs are affected the resulting reduction in the blood supply frequently brings with it a good deal of pain and disability. After walking even a short distance, patients with this condition are apt to suffer so much pain in the legs that it is necessary to stop and rest.

Physical treatment — heat, massage and exercise — has a place in the treatment of this condition, but it must be carefully carried out and controlled; otherwise it may serve only to make the symptoms worse. Excessive exercise is especially to be guarded against.

Severe Pain

If the patient has severe pain in the legs, for instance, walking should be discouraged. If there is no severe pain, the patient should be encouraged to walk slowly. If pain develops, he should rest and massage the calf muscles gently. Walking can then be resumed. It is suggested that this type of exercise can be repeated for a total of 30 minutes, ten minutes three times a day.

Another helpful exercise is taken with the patient lying in bed. He raises the legs to an angle of 60 to 90 degrees and then rests them on a support for from 30 seconds to two minutes. As soon as the skin of the legs becomes pale, the patient lets the feet hang down over the edge of the bed for from two to five minutes until the skin becomes reddened. Then, after another minute, the legs are placed in a horizontal position for them three to five minutes.

To carry out this entire procedure requires about 19 minutes. The exercises are then repeated at intervals over a period of about one hour.

In another form of treatment, a glass or plastic boot is put on over the leg. The pressure in the boot is decreased for a period of three to four minutes and then increased for one or two minutes. This treatment also has some benefit.

Another method is to put a rubber cuff around the leg and to inflate it with air for two minutes and then to release the pressure for from three to five minutes. This treatment is kept up for from one to two hours. If there is any inflammation in the veins or arteries, this treatment should not be employed.

Light massage for fifteen minutes, twice daily, has a beneficial effect. Deeper massage may be harmful. Massage should also be avoided if there is any infection or inflammation of the blood vessels.

Warm Water

Baths with alternating warm and cool water seem to be of value in some instances. The legs are alternately immersed in the cool water and then the warm water for one minute each, for a total of 15 minutes three times a day.

Patients with these circulatory conditions seem to do better if they keep warm, and should not follow any occupation which involves exposure to cold. Sleeping with woolen socks and an electric blanket will help to provide comfort at night.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

T. P. S.: What causes itching on the outside of the rectum?

Answer: The itching may be due to a ringworm infection in the area, to an infection with germs, or to hemorrhoids. In many cases, it may be due to nervous disorders. Very often the exact cause cannot be found.

Fire Traps Miners

Then Sets Them Free

SULLIVAN, Ind., Jan. 26.—(P)—An underground fire that trapped 14 coal miners burned long enough last night to accidentally clear an escape route, and all 14 got out safely.

The only casualties of the conveyor belt fire in the Pandora mine were two miners overcome by smoke. They were not injured seriously.

As firefighters moved into the small shaft mine, one of the temporarily trapped miners told how the 14 found an unexpected route to the bottom of the main shaft, 210 feet underground.

Archie Clark, 46, Hymers, Ind., told a reporter the smoke and fire blocked the main passageway where the fire raged in the conveyor transporting coal to mine cars, which in turn haul coal to the central shaft. The 14 were working three-quarters of a mile southwest of the shaft.

Finally, Clark said, the fire burned through a brattice partition that had sealed off a worked-out passageway in the mine. That let air from the mine ventilating system into the parallel passage, and the 14 made their way to the elevator cage at the bottom of the shaft.

Just a Hint Clem!

Symbolic Umbrella Sent Him by VFW

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 26.—(P)—An umbrella -- "for support in his appeasement" -- is on its way to Great Britain's Prime Minister Clement Attlee today.

Along with it, leaders of Newark Veterans of Foreign Wars posts sent the following cablegram last night:

"Dear Mr. Attlee: just in case Mr. Chamberlain didn't leave you his, we are forwarding you an umbrella. It may come in handy in Peiping."

A VFW spokesman said the umbrella and note were prompted by Attlee's reluctance to back up the United States in branding Communist China the aggressor in Korea and "for support in his appeasement of the Chinese Communists."

The umbrella became the symbol of appeasement before World War II. Cartoons always pictured former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain carrying one, especially on his return from the Munich conferences with Hitler and his "Peace in Our Time" speech.

Fortieth Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Durlfing, who celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary on Thursday, were pleasantly surprised when their daughter, Mrs. Albert Streuve of Greenfield entertained a group of their relatives, close friends and members of their wedding party forty years ago, at a lovely evening party at their home near Yatesville.

During the early part of the evening informal visiting was enjoyed and Mrs. M. L. Lyons, in behalf of the group, presented Mr. and Mrs. Durlfing with a lovely gift. Pictures were taken of the couple cutting their cake which adorned one end of the beautifully appointed table, with a lovely arrangement of red roses as an added decoration, which was the gift of their daughter. Later Mrs. M. L. Lyons served the cake and Mrs. Grace Whiteside presided over the silver coffee service.

Guests included at the delightful event included: Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Minnick of South Charleston, Mrs. Grace Whiteside of Sedalia, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Looker, Mr. and Mrs. Eben Thomas, Mrs. Mayme Johnston of Yatesville, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Lyons, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. ## WSCS Members Observe Tenth Anniversary

The members of the New Martinsburg WSCS met at Grange Hall Thursday afternoon for the regular January meeting. Mrs. Thurl Wilson was in charge of the devotions which opened with the hymn, "Break Thou The Bread of Life." Scripture reading from Matthew was followed with the reading "Toward the Hills", by Mrs. Oscar McCoy, and the reading of a prayer by Mrs. Wilson closed this period.

The business session was presided over by Mrs. Willis Handley and the usual reports were heard. The tenth anniversary of the society was observed with members of the Sugar Grove WSCS as guests who presented the society with a cake. Mrs. Handley presided over the impressive candlelight service. Report of activities of the society for the month included 63 sick calls, 106 cards sent, and four donations. Three new members, Mrs. Henrietta Ellis, Mrs. Charles Sieg, and Mrs. Elbert Binegar were welcomed into the society by the members. Plans for the all-day meeting February 22, at the home of Mrs. Homer Smith were made and will include a covered dish luncheon and an afternoon white elephant auction.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Dean Simmons, who presented Mrs. Wendell Shaffer of Greenfield in two accordion solos. Mrs. Audrey Williams of England, an exchange teacher in the Greenfield Schools, was presented in a talk on religion schools and social life in England, which was most interesting.

A social hour followed and tempting refreshments were served from a table, centered with an arrangement of red roses flanked on either end with tall red tapers and the group found their places at small tables featuring Valentine suggestions.

Guests included eleven members of the Sugar Grove WSCS and Mrs. Martha Baker, Mrs. Neil Binegar, Donna Lou Wilson and Miss Eileen Tway. Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Happy Wilson chairman assisted by Miss Louise Ritter.

John Glenn, Mrs. Herbert Evans and Mrs. W. P. Noble, served a tempting salad course during a pleasant social hour. Master Richard Craig was a guest.

Kensington Club Is Entertained By Miss Rowe

Miss Mazie Rowe was hostess to fourteen members of the Thursday Kensington at her home Thursday afternoon. The ladies enjoyed a pleasant afternoon chatting over their needle work which was doubly enjoyable since it was the first meeting since the annual Christmas party.

A "round robin" letter was made up to be sent to Mrs. Welter C. Briggs who is ill and was unable to be present. Later Miss Rowe seated her guests at one

Personals

Dr. John C. Marsh, curator of history and librarian of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society, and Miss Elizabeth C. Biggert, documents librarian, Ohio State Museum, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Kelley at the Hotel Washington dining room, Thursday evening, preceding the annual meeting of the Fayette County Historical Society, where Dr. Marsh was the guest speaker.

Miss Nita Henderson, student at DePauw University, Greencastle, Indiana, joins her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Henderson of Port Huron, Michigan, for a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Hercules and daughter, Cindy.

Mrs. Charles Spitzer, Mrs. William Coleman and Mrs. Earl Kinsey of Marysville, were Thursday luncheon guests of Mrs. William A. Boylan.

Mrs. Charles McLean, Mrs. Albert S. Glascoe, Mrs. L. Loring Brock and Mrs. Willard S. Willis were visitors in Columbus Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Lucas motored to Columbus Thursday evening to see Mae West who starred in "Diamond Lil" at the Hartman Theater.

Mrs. C. C. Marine and Mrs. Glenn Vannorsdall returned Thursday from Dayton where they were Wednesday overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Martin in Dayton and with Mrs. Martin attended the Dayton Philharmonic Concert at Memorial Hall Wednesday evening. Mrs. Vannorsdall's son-in-law Mr. Jerry Holesovsky is concert master.

Gibeauts Hosts to Class Members

Twenty-one members of the Friendship Circle Class of the Bloomingburg Methodist Church, assembled at the lovely country home of Mr. and Mrs. John Gibeaut Thursday evening for the regular monthly meeting. Mrs. Gibeaut was in charge of the opening devotionals which included the singing of the hymn "What A Friend" followed by prayer by Rev. Guy Tucker. Responsive reading was "Care For His Own" and the hymn "In My Heart There Rings a Melody," closed the worship period. The Sunday School lesson was reviewed by Mrs. Zoe Gangering in a very interesting and instructive manner. The business session was in charge of Mr. Glenn Earl Davis Sr., during which the secretary and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. The meeting was closed with the hymn "Sweeter As The Years Go By." Mr. and Mrs. Gibeaut were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Michael and Mrs. Zoe Gangering in the serving of a tempting refreshment course. Jackie Elliott was included as a guest.

Between us, he's actually just suffering the symptoms of a man who is sneaking up on his fortieth birthday; but one thing is certain, Hal's heart will never slow down to a shuffle.

Two Die of Gas Fumes From Furnace in Home

ADA, Jan. 26 —(AP)—Robert Gamble, 23, Ohio Northern University student from Van Wert, died from gas fumes early today—several hours after he was found unconscious beside the body of his landlady in the latter's home.

Dr. H. R. Johanson, Hardin County coroner, said the fumes came from a defective flue for a floor gas furnace. He said Gamble and the landlady, Frank Estill, 75, were stricken Monday night.

him most, though, because there never has been any glumness when the Irishman was around.

Back in Taegu, he named our press billet "Happy Holler Hall." He assembled all the middle-aged retirees from the last war in one room which he named the sheep's room. The younger reporters were banished to the goats' room.

The Boyle house rules were "sleep is for goats" and "if you don't like our billet get out." Back of the billet lived several Korean families—each with a household of children. Once John Davies, of the Newark Daily News, taught the children to chant, "Boyle no good... Boyle no good."

They didn't know what they were saying but they were enthusiastic because it was Boyle. The next time Hal came out on the balcony to toss candy and chewing gum to the kids they looked up at him with friendly grins and chanted, "Boyle no good..."

Hal joined in their chant. There is little enough kindness amid the hunger and despair of Korea, but walking down the street, if you looked closely, you would see Hal slipping thousand-won notes (worth a quarter) to the urchins shivering in the cold.

On one breather trip from Korea to Tokyo we bought some heavy fleecy underwear to help us through the freezing weather in North Korea. We went to the 24th Division when the temperature was near zero and stayed in a tent.

New Book about Lincoln Written By Author from Fayette County

A new book about Abraham Lincoln, a book that brings to light a new phase of the life and career of Lincoln, is scheduled for formal release Feb. 9.

The title of the book is "Lincoln and the Press" and it was written by Robert S. Harper, a native of Fayette County and a product of Washington C. H. High School.

The book "has been a long time in the making," the author admitted when he stopped in at the Record-Herald office today for a brief visit with some of his old friends. Plainly showing the strain of months of research and writing, he added with a smile "I wonder at this late hour whether the effort justified the result . . . but time will tell, I suppose . . . it usually does."

That was only Bob Harper's modesty and any author's natural anxiety over his work; for the few who in high literary and publishing circles who have been privileged to read it are lavish in their praise.

Praise by Authorities

One said: "The story of 'Lincoln and the Press' is one of the few major books on Lincoln and on the Civil War period that remained to be written. This important contribution by Mr. Harper rounds out the great living picture that we have of Lincoln and completes the Lincoln story." Here in a broad panoramic sweep and in dramatic detail, is the newspaper story of Abraham Lincoln from the day in 1836 when his name first appeared in print to the time of his death in 1865 when the press of the whole world (with a few die-hard exceptions) mourned publicly.

"Lincoln and the Press" reveals, as no other book ever has done, the relations of Lincoln and the newspapers of that day. Here, then, for the first time, is the whole story of Civil War journalism, including such little known facts as the openly vituperative hostility of large sections of the press to Abraham Lincoln, the failure of the press to note his great qualities until after his death.

"The book could have been written only by a person who has made a lifelong study of Lincoln and who, at the same time, has been a professional newspaperman. Mr. Harper has both of these qualifications . . . and has been able to make accurate interpretations and write with complete understanding of this phase of Lincoln's life."

Another, Professor Allan Nevins, an eminent American historian and author of "The Emergence of Lincoln," said of Harper's "Lincoln and the Press": "Mr. Harper has completed a huge and important task . . . all students of Lincoln's career and the Civil War period will welcome it warmly and the general reader will find it of real interest."

Interesting Authentic

Talking of his new book while here, Harper said he had tried to make it interesting and added that he felt that he had achieved that aim. Of the correctness of historical fact and authenticity of the background, he had no doubt. He explained that he had spent months of research, digging into musty old files of newspapers in cities and towns when Lincoln had been and studying more files preserved in public libraries.

Since Harper now makes his home in Columbus, an advance release of Feb. 5 has been set for that city, he said.

He is to be the guest of honor at a press dinner there that day with an autograph period to follow.

The author and his book are to be featured in the Dispatch Magazine and book review section on Feb. 4.

The book has been entered by McGraw-Hill, the publishing company, in the Pulitzer competition for American History and in the national competition sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, a national journalistic fraternity.

Collier's Magazine has arranged with the publisher to feature a story on "Lincoln and the Press" and publish a chapter from it in the form of a story in the Lincoln's birthday edition.

And to top off the literary recognition, the snooty Saturday Review of Literature is to carry Harper's picture on the cover.

Arrangements also are in the making for him to appear on a radio program from a Columbus station and for a television interview.

Fayette County Native

Bob Harper was born on a farm near Jeffersonville, but came to Washington C. H. with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Lee Harper, when a small boy.

While still in high school here, Bob Harper started his newspaper career as a cub reporter on the old Daily Herald and after his graduation he joined the staff as a regular.

still in use in the Record-Herald news room.

From Columbus he went to New York to take a job on the New York World, but later came back to Columbus. He retired from newspaper work last year to devote his entire time to his book while managing editor of the Ohio State Journal.

He has written two other books, "Trumpet in the Wilderness" and "Road to Baltimore." Both are historical novels, and both have sold out several editions.

Mrs. Harper is the former Aileen Hess, a Washington C. H. girl, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fuller Hess.

Harper's new book is dedicated to Mrs. Harper's aunt, Mrs. Lucy Hess Holmes, of Washington C. H.

What do the people of Washington C. H. think of their National Guard unit?

Here's a word from the Chief of Police Vaiden Long, Chief Long says:

"Everyone here in Washington C. H. takes pride in our local unit of the Ohio National Guard. These young men are doing a fine thing by giving part of their time to the Guard."

"Not only are they training in good citizenship, but they are also helping to make America strong. They know that a strong America is a peaceful America, and they deserve our support in every way possible."

Features at the Theaters

The thousands of African tribesmen used as extras for scenes in "King Solomon's Mines," coming to the Fayette Theater on Sunday and Monday, helped out the studio wardrobe department by supplying their traditional and fantastic costumes themselves. The directors had to be on guard though for research on the warlike Karamoja tribe of Northern Uganda revealed that they wore slightly less than a "G-string."

Also used in the movie were thousands of jungle animals. For the stampede scene the MGM cameramen used the occasion of the burning out of grass and small brush on the Serengeti Plain to film the wild animals in action.

comes to the screen of the Fayette on Sunday and Monday. This stupendous technicolor production relates the story of a white woman in search of her lost husband in the fantastic scenic backgrounds and wild life of Africa. The safari which the woman goes with encounters all kinds of dangers.

Adult entertainment has been promised with the showing of "No Way Out," a film which producer Darryl F. Zanuck claims deals "with the absolute blood and guts, the bread and potatoes, so to speak of Negro bating." It will come to the Fayette Theater on Tuesday and Wednesday. Starred will be Richard Widmark, Linda Darnell and Stephen McNally and Sidney Poitier.

Warner Brothers "Dallas," romantic adventure filmed in technicolor during the post-Civil War days where a southerner, Gary Cooper, seeks revenge on three renegade brothers who pillaged his property during the hostilities. Ruth Roman, and Steve Cochran are also starred.

STATE THEATER

"Branded," wide-open adventure drama of the Rio Grande, will open the bill at the State on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Allan Ladd is starred along with Mona Freeman. Ladd takes the part of a crafty desperado, who acquires a false birthmark and poses as the long lost son and heir of a wealthy cattleman but who has a change of heart.

On Wednesday and Thursday "Lonely Hearts Bandits" and "Kansas City Kitty" will come to the screen of the State. The former is a story of the mail order love racket and the crime which goes with it. Starred are Dorothy Patrick and John Eldredge. Joan Davis and Bob Crosby are starred in "Kansas City Kitty."

"Tex Ritter" has the leading role in "Oklahoma Raiders" which comes to the screen of the State Theater on Friday and Saturday. Ritter plays the part of a fast shooting Army lieutenant disguised as a cowboy who solves the mysterious disappearance of several wild mustangs. A serial and another short are also on the same movie bill.

Churches Plan For Youth Week

Special Program
Arranged by Some

Most of the churches in Fayette County today had rounded out plans to observe "Youth Week" in one way or another.

Sponsored by the National Council of Churches, Youth Week starts next Sunday and continues through Feb. 4.

A few of the churches in this community have planned comprehensive programs; some are merely underscoring the youth program that are regularly followed and others will mark the week with references from the pulpit by the ministers.

A special program that takes in both the opening and closing Sundays of Youth Week has been arranged by the First Presbyterian Church. One of the highlights of the observance will be a district conference of young people; churches in Bloomingburg, London, Mt. Sterling, Sedalia and Washington, C. H. are to participate through their youth representatives. The theme is "Being a Christian in this Atomic Age."

Rev. Harold Braden, the pastor of the church, said.

Panel Discussion

On Feb. 4, Stephen Brown, superintendent of the city schools, Rev. Allan Peterson, pastor of the Bloomingburg church, and Arthur Wohlers, principal of Washington C. H. High School are to conduct a panel discussion at the First Presbyterian Church.

Young people are to have full charge of the Sunday School programs at the First Baptist Church Feb. 28 to open Youth Week. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hough, sponsors of the Young Peoples Fellowship, are to serve in an advisory capacity.

The closing feature of Youth Week is to be a special Sunday School program in charge of the Junior Hi-Y group. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lambert are the sponsors.

Besides, Rev. Francis T. McCarty, the church pastor, said he planned to include a short message to the young people both Sundays.

The opening and closing of next Sunday's regular service at Grace Methodist Church are to be conducted by young people. Rev. Allan W. Caley, the pastor, said. Stephen Brown, Jr., is to lead the opening and Ann James is to give the closing prayer.

A potluck supper is planned for the junior and senior Youth Fellowship groups in Fellowship Hall at 5:30 P. M.

Contrasting Observance

Contrasting to the special services in some of the churches, Rev. C. B. Tigner said "the First Christian Church has a very comprehensive youth program which it carries on throughout the year" and that the Youth Week sponsored by the National Council of Churches covers the same field of activity.

There will be, he pointed out, a youth rally at Jamestown next Sunday, the start of Youth Week by coincidence. Young people from 30 or 35 churches in this area will be represented, he said.

For Feb. 6, just two days after the close of Youth Week, he said, plans had been completed for a youth gathering in the Dayton Power & Light Co. auditorium for a special program. This is to be in the evening.

A camp banquet, which will bring about 200 young people who have participated in the church's Butler Springs camp activities, is scheduled for Feb. 16 at the First Christian Church.

Another youth rally, similar to the one at Jamestown, is to be held here Feb. 28.

Youth Week Theme

The theme chosen for National Youth Week is: "Christ Calls . . . Serve in Faith."

This is the eighth annual observance which combines Youth

Week and Christian Endeavor Week.

The movement is sponsored by the United Christian Youth Movement which is administered by the Department of Young People's Work of the National Council of Churches of Christ in America. Rev. A. Wilson Cheek is the executive secretary.

"Youth Week is a period of purposeful and objective planning and action carried out through a forceful demonstration of Christianity, a reemphasizing of Christian unity, an evangelistic outreach, and presentation of the spirit of Christian young people," Rev. Cheek said.

In 1944 the first united observance of Youth Week-Christian Endeavor Week was held. Since then it has become one of the largest church events in North America. An estimated 5,000,000 youth of 40 Protestant denominations, 35 state councils of churches and youth councils, the international Society of Christian Endeavor, and such youth-serving groups as the YMCA, YWCA, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls, participate in Youth Week.

Six Are Indicted For Stealing Stock

Six members of an alleged livestock rustling gang have been indicted by the Madison County Grand Jury on grand larceny charges.

Those indicted are: Ernie and Glenn Gilbert and James Garvey, held in Union County; John Garvey, held in Pickaway County; George Garvey and John Queen, the latter held in Madison County.

The charges were filed against the men for alleged theft of livestock from Madison County farms.

It is understood the gang of livestock thieves operated in several counties, including Pickaway, Madison, Union and Fayette.

The Railroads RESPECT... The Union Leaders seek to REPUDIATE... this agreement!

What is the TRUTH?

At various stages in the present dispute with the brotherhoods of railroad operating employees

... the railroads agreed to arbitrate. The union leaders refused.

... the railroads accepted the recommendations of President Truman's Emergency Board. The union leaders refused.

... the railroads accepted the White House proposal of August 19, 1950. The union leaders refused.

Finally an Agreement was signed at the White House on December 21, 1950. Now the union leaders seek to repudiate the Agreement.

The railroads stand ready to put the terms of this Agreement into effect immediately, with back pay at the rates and dates indicated.

The Agreement is given in full below.

MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT

Washington, D. C.
December 21, 1950

1. Establish 40 hour week for yardmen with increase of 23 cents effective October 1, 1950, and additional 2 cents effective January 1, 1951.
2. Set aside 40 hour week agreement until January 1, 1952, and establish 6 day work week for yardmen. Effective with the first pay roll period after 30 days from the date of execution of the formal agreement. Yardmen required by the carrier to work on the 7th day to be paid overtime rates except engineers who shall receive straight time rates for the 7th day. This does not create guarantees where they do not now exist. On and after October 1, 1951, three months' notice to be given of desire to go on 40 hour week. Provide for consideration of availability of manpower and 4 cents per hour if and when the 40 hour week actually becomes effective.
3. Settle rules for 40 hour week and 6 day week.
4. Grant yard conductors and brakemen other rules such as daily earnings minimum, car retarder operators and footboard yardmasters as recommended by Emergency Board No. 81.
5. Settle following rules:
  - Initial Terminal Delay (Conductors and Trainmen)
  - Interdivisional Runs (Conductors and Trainmen)
  - Pooling Caboose (Conductors and Trainmen)
  - Reporting for Duty
  - More than One Class of Service
  - Switching Limits
  - Air Hose (Conductors and Trainmen)
  - Western Differential and Double Header and Tonnage Limitation (Conductors and Trainmen, all Territories)
6. Road men to receive 5 cents per hour increase effective October 1, 1950, and additional 5 cents per hour increase effective January 1, 1951.

7. Quarterly adjustment of wages on basis of cost of living index (1 point to equal 1¢ per hour. First adjustment April 1, 1951. Base to be 176).
8. Agreement embodying principles applicable to yardmasters to be entered into for benefit of yardmasters.
9. Effective October 1, 1950, the basic hours of dining car stewards shall be reduced from 225 to 205 hours per month; no penalty overtime to accrue until 240 hours have been worked, the hours between 205 and 240 to be paid for at the pro rata rate.

Effective February 1, 1951, overtime at time and one-half shall accrue after 220 hours have been worked. The basic monthly salary to be paid for the 205-hour month shall be the same as that now paid for the 225-hour month. Except that four dollars and ten cents ($4.10) shall be added to the present monthly rate effective January 1, 1951.

10. In consideration of above, this agreement to be effective until October 1, 1953, and thereafter until changed or modified under provisions of Railway Labor Act. Moratorium on proposals for changes in wages or rules until October 1, 1953, as follows:

No proposals for changes in rates of pay, rules or working conditions will be initiated or progressed by the employees against any carrier or by any carrier against its employees, parties hereto, within a period of three years from October 1, 1950, except such proposals for changes in rules or working conditions which may have been initiated prior to June 1, 1950. Provided, however, that if as the result of government wage stabilization policy, workers generally have been permitted to receive so-called annual improvement increases, the parties may meet with Doctor Steelman on or after July 1, 1952, to discuss whether or not further wage adjustments for employees covered by this agreement are justified, in addition to increases received under the cost of living formula. At the request of either party for such a meeting Doctor Steelman shall fix the time and place for such meeting. Doctor Steelman and the parties may secure information from the wage stabilization authorities or other government agencies. If the parties are unable to agree at such conferences whether or not further wage adjustments are justified they shall ask the President of the United States to appoint a referee who shall sit with them and consider all pertinent information, and decide promptly whether further wage increases are justified and, if so, what such increases should be, and the effective date thereof. The carrier representatives shall have one vote, the employee representatives shall have one vote and the referee shall have one vote.

11. If the parties cannot agree on details of agreement or rules they shall be submitted to John R. Steelman for final decision.

The usual protections for arbitrators, miscellaneous rates, special allowances, and existing money differentials above existing standard daily rates will be included in the formal agreement.

**The foregoing will not debar management and committees on individual railroads from mutually agreeing upon changes in rates, rules and working conditions of employees covered by this agreement.

Fesler Takes New Job Without a Contract

COLUMBUS, Jan. 26—(AP)—Wesley Fesler revealed today that he will be head football coach at the University of Minnesota for three years under a "gentleman's agreement"—with no formal papers signed.

He told of his contract status as he prepared to board a plane for Minneapolis. He will talk with University of Minnesota officials, athletic department members, and players to "orient" himself to his new coaching job.

Fesler said:

"My agreement with Minnesota officials will be like the one I had at Ohio State. In other words, it won't be a written document, but a gentleman's agreement that I shall remain at Minnesota for three years."

Fesler, who resigned as Ohio State head football coach only 48 days ago and said he was through with coaching, plans to be back in Columbus by Tuesday. He was a real estate salesman in Columbus after he resigned.

Fesler said he found himself thinking more about football than the real estate business, and accepted the Minnesota offer when it was made him.

FESLER SAID he had been given a free hand in selecting his assistants. Wednesday he announced he will put Lyle Clark, Buckeye line coach, and Dick Fisher, backfield coach, on his staff.

He plans to make a second trip to Minneapolis in February with Fisher and Clark.

Asked about the rest of the staff-to-be, Fesler said:

"I've been given a free hand completely. But since I've made no actual contacts as yet up there, I have no real ideas as to whom I will select."

Meanwhile, Ohio State's hunt for a coach to replace Fesler moved forward. Drake University's Warren Gaer was scheduled for an interview by the screening committee today, Chuck Mather, Massillon, O., High School football coach, and Paul Brown, coach of the Cleveland Browns professional team will be interviewed Saturday.

The university board of trustees meets Feb. 12, and it is possible all interviews will be out of the way by then.

2 Iowa Cagers Barred During Investigation

IOWA CITY, Ia., Jan. 26—(AP)—Two remorseful University of Iowa basketball players, barred from intercollegiate competition for delivering parlay cards to Davenport, Ia., today awaited final action in their case.

The athletes, Fred Ruck and Harold (Skip) Greene, were suspended yesterday pending further investigation. The two have been regular guards in Iowa's lineup most of the season.

Athletic Director Paul Brechler gave details of the case to the university board of athletics last night. The board voted to leave any further action up to the office of student affairs.

Head Basketball Coach Rollie Williams disclosed that the two players, who are college roommates, had been contacted by a Chicago group that originated the cards. They were asked to deliver them to a Davenport tavern operator and were promised a fee for doing so, Williams said.

Brechler, who investigated the affair, said, however, he didn't think the boys collected any money.

Lion Cubs Win In Close Game

Greenfield Edged For 7th Victory

A narrow, 24 to 21, victory over the Tiger Cubs at Greenfield Thursday afternoon gave the Lion Cubs of WHS their seventh win of the season and put them in a confident and determined frame of mind for the rest of their schedule and the Junior High School basketball tourney that is coming up in the near future here.

They have lost only one game to date—to Chillicothe's Juniors --but they evened that up in a return game.

Thursday's game at Greenfield was marked by a tight defense by both teams; some of the race horse type of offense that has spiced most of the previous games was noticeable by its absence.

Whitley, the scoring ace of the Lion Cubs, was handcuffed by the Greenfield boys. He got only two field goals, the fewest in any game yet.

But, his mates rushed to fill the gap. When Whitley was bottled up, the offense was shifted to feed the ball to the other Cubs.

Although the WHS boys were ahead at the end of each period, their lead never was enough to permit them to relax for one second.

Pacific Coast Teams Expected To Continue Rose Bowl Agreement

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26—(AP)—Speculation whether the Pacific coast conference may sever its time honored affiliation with the Rose Bowl football game is "pure guesswork" in the opinion of one highly placed conference official.

Requesting anonymity, this source expressed the belief the conference would continue its agreement with the Tournament of Roses Association. He agreed it was possible—but added he thought it "improbable"—the pact would be ended.

"Talk that such members as Washington State, Idaho, Oregon State, and Oregon may be in accord on the idea of abandoning the Rose Bowl tieup seems contrary to the present financial arrangements of the conference," the official said.

"These smaller schools would face the loss of a share of the Rose Bowl receipts, which amounts to about $6,000 each. They use this money largely to contribute to the salary of the conference commissioner and the expenses of operating his office. Without the receipts from the Rose Bowl game, they would be placed in the position of having to dig up the money from other sources. This is an expenditure some of them could ill afford." Under coast conference rules, each member shares in the Rose Bowl receipts.

Jockey Mike Gonzalez, who will ride this winter at Hialeah, is an expert player of the Spanish national game of jai alai.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
I S L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

GAMADGE continued with his theory of now the Coldfields had planned to place Sylvia Coldfield in a sanitarium temporarily. "It's a kind of murder, yes, and we mustn't forget that one of them knew from the beginning that you had nothing against you—not even attempted suicide, which was the basis for the whole case. The murderer knew it. And let me assure you," said Gamadge, "that the murderer is as nappy as a king. Or a queen, if queens are supposed to be nappy too. Not a tremor, not a twitch of the nerves; that character feels as safe as a slug in a cocoon."

Mrs. Coldfield nodded. "Now for what I did gather, which isn't much. Ames Coldfield knows as well as we do what our theory is: that you and your husband were given those capsules, with intent to kill. He's a clever man, as you said; a very clever man. He couldn't miss that alternative. Whether any of the others have missed it, I don't know. And I'm almost sure he knew those Garthman letters were there in that little rosewood desk. Whether he simply found them, and left them, or whether he's the one who sold them, I don't as yet know. I'll know better tomorrow morning."

"Left them?" asked Clara. "If he's the ancestor-worshiper he pretends to be, what exactly would he do? Destroy them? That would be against all his instincts. Tell about them? I doubt it. There had been a Garthman affair there might have been others, and now would the Watertons, to say nothing of the family itself, feel about a suggestion of baten sinister in the Coldfield arms? I think he'd leave them for the next generation to deal with, and meanwhile he'd savor the secret and get a lot of private fun out of it. I'm only guessing."

"And by the time Glen found out," said Mrs. Coldfield, "Ames had looked through the letters again; only one envelope was there. The Garthman correspondence had been sold."

"Yes, he knows that too. So what does he do? Nothing. He had no evidence. But hasn't he wondered whether a criminal secret like that isn't connected with your husband's death?"

"He sounds very heartless and cruel," said Clara. "In his way he is, I suppose. He gets a lot of fun out of it all—he got a lot of fun out of showing us the Deane Coldfield letters, and reading one of them to us."

"You actually got yourself up into that attic?"

"I did, but we won't go into it now—there isn't time. Now for your brother-in-law Ira Coldfield. He's an enigma, like all of his type; he's learned to control his feelings. He has outbursts at the right moments, but who's to say they're not calculated? There's nothing against his having seen the letters, and it's possible that he needed that money. The place seems to me to be a little under-staffed. Mrs. Coldfield—or was when you and your husband were part of the household."

"It was, of late years. Georgette seems to find it hard to get servants up there."

"And that wedding is going to cost them plenty. On the face of it, he seems like the kind of man who'd take his brother's and his wife's advice about a case such as yours appeared to be, go along with them, perhaps reluctantly, entirely believing that you would be better off for a season in a mental institution, unconsciously biased by his own deeply felt wish to sweep you off the earth and out of the minds of men. I don't know."

"Mrs. Ira wouldn't be so likely to act without bias—would she?"

"No," said Mrs. Coldfield, smiling faintly. "She'd certainly like to cut a dash in the eyes of the Watertons, and on her own account too. And there was a suggestion that she found her husband a little close with his money. Even Susan suggested it."

"He is, a little."

"He comes by it honestly," said Gamadge, laughing. "No question but that he's a Coldfield! As for Susan, she's very much attached to that eligible she's marrying. Nice enough fellow—I don't think myself that he'd bother his head about the shortcomings of Susan's ancestors. Did he have some kind of affair with the little Smyth girl before he took up with Susan Coldfield?"

Taken aback by the suddenness of the question, she looked at him, frowning. After a moment she said, "The four of them were always together; I suppose the Smyths were or less paired off with Susan and Jim. I never heard—"

"There's a family that needs money more than any Coldfield ever did. The boy is out—definitely out. He's on his own feet. This Zelma, though—she seems to have had the run of the house in the good old days before Susan's engagement, may keep to the old ways still. She knows that attic; and it wasn't she who found your husband's old fingerprinting outfit."

"There was one?"

"Certainly was, Susan dragged it out and didn't know what it was. Really didn't, I mean."

"He left it up there, after—"

"Apparently he did. Zelma Smyth was there the night we were poisoned; they were all playing games downstairs; nobody'd be missed if they slipped away. How about the Sunday night—the night your husband was murdered?"

"But Mr. Gamadge—"

"Just tell me. Could she have been in the house that time?"

"Not that I know of. But—"

"The door that leads from the study. Ames study, out into the garden. Is it kept locked?"

"No, not until everything's locked up at night. I simply can't—"

"She's lost Waterton to Susan Coldfield," said Gamadge. "She's not being treated at all nicely by the Coldfield people, they're afraid of her, and she isn't in a good state of mind about them. Susan and her James are not tactful. She may have lost him long before the engagement was announced, probably did; and if she found those letters, and knew what they meant in the way of money, it's just possible that she thought she'd be getting a lot of her own back without depriving anyone. And if your husband found her out, she'd be in a worse position than any Coldfield."

"That little thing! I don't believe it."

"But you didn't know her very well. There'd be books in Doctor Smyth's office that would tell her all about sedatives, wouldn't there? We have to think of everything," Gamadge told her mildly. "And she was the only one of the lot who asked where you were."

"Zelma Smyth wanted to know where I'd gone?"

"Yes, but of course she says she likes you. We had a little of everything up there," said Gamadge reflectively, "including some uproarious farce, and a considerable amount of polite comedy, and a permeating sense of melodrama; but through it all, nobody asked me questions. Nobody but Susan."

"But Mr. Gamadge, what I don't understand is, who would act as Zelma Smyth's agent in England? Why do you even wonder, when you were so sure the agent thought it would be safe to sell the letters? You said a minute ago that she'd be in a very bad position if she were found out; the Coldfields wouldn't feel it necessary to protect her."

"That's a difficulty," admitted Gamadge, "and I'm pretty sure no agent of hers would find himself on your list. He'd have to be a big gambler—take a chance. But for reasons of my own I like her as a suspect—I can be said to like anybody." He got up. "We'll know more about agents tomorrow. Now I'll just fix us up a nightcap, and then Clara and I will drive you over to the hotel."

"It's rather pleasant, by this time, to be sure that nobody knows where I am."

"You won't be lonely," said Clara. "I'll call up first thing in the morning, and we'll have lunch together."

Mrs. Coldfield sat back, looking up at them. She said, "I don't quote poetry. Glen broke me of it; and the only way I could possibly say what I feel about you two would be by quoting poetry."

"Don't have any illusions about us," begged Gamadge, laughing. "We do as we please."

Curator Speaks To Historical Society Here

Officers Re-elected For 1951; Report Made on Activities

At the annual meeting of the Fayette County Historical Society, held in Memorial Hall Thursday night, the same officers of the society were re-elected for the coming year.

Other business was transacted. The meeting was highlighted by an exceptionally interesting and educational address delivered by John O. Marsh, curator of history and librarian of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society.

The officers re-elected were: President, John P. Case; vice-president, Miss Edith Gardner; secretary, B. E. Kelley; treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Johnson. Trustees, Howard Allen, Rell G. Allen, Valdo R. McCoy, Chester Zimmerman, Mrs. B. E. Kelley, Robert Jefferson and Harold Craig, with the president, vice president, secretary and treasurer also members.

The nominating committee was composed of Mrs. Max G. Dice, chairman; Mrs. Arch O. Riber and Ulric T. Acton.

Report of Activities

In opening the meeting President Case extended greetings and spoke of activities of the society the past year.

Reports were made by the secretary, treasurer and Mrs. Max Dice, chairman of records and research. Mrs. Dice enumerated many important documentary and other gifts to the society.

The treasurer's report showed the society had $398.55 on deposit on January 1, 1950 and that during the past year eight new members were added, including a new life member; 107 paid their 1950 dues and so far 60 renewals have been received for 1951. It was stated the 1951 membership dues of $1 are now payable.

Expenses of the society the past year were $54.97, paid for metal filing cases, printing, postage and supplies.

The secretary's report disclosed many important gifts to the society during the past year. It reviewed the activities of the society in 1950, with outlook for 1951. Several events are planned for the benefit of the society and community during the balance of the year.

The secretary pointed out that one of the growing needs is housing facilities. The secretary plans were being made for more adequate housing until the society can have a museum building.

John O. Marsh was introduced by Secretary B. E. Kelley, who had long known Marsh through affiliations with the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society.

The speaker's subject was "Growing Pains of Society, 1830 to 1860". The audience thoroughly enjoyed the unusual and highly educational information given as the result of long and careful research on the part of the speaker.

Influence of Immigrants

Marsh reviewed the influx of great numbers of German and Irish immigrants during the period 1830 to 1860, and the many complications which arose as result of the large foreign element, which spread over Ohio and other parts of the nation.

He said it required many years for the resident Americans to become accustomed to the newcomers, and likewise it was years before the newcomers dropped their native garb and customs and were assimilated in the great melting pot of society. Rise and fall of political parties was cited by Marsh.

He related many interesting incidents, some of them serious, others ludicrous, as the newcomers became an integral part of America. The enmity between the Germans and Irish, and some of the other foreign born for years was pronounced, he said, and the natives of America were reluctant to accept the immigrants.

The speaker related how changes in the religious and political picture came about through the influx of foreign born, and how the Civil War welded the Germans, Irish native-born and others together as Americans.

"Patriotism always has played an important part in American History, and always will," Marsh said.

Security Board

(Continued from Page One) internal security without sacrificing the people's freedoms. Part of the presidential assignment calls for an analysis and report on the loyalty program covering government workers.

The eight members are: Miss Anna Lord Strauss, former president of the League of Women Voters, as vice chairman; the Rev. Karl Morgan Block, Episcopal Bishop of California; former Republican Senator John Danaher of Connecticut; Harvey Firestone, Jr., of Akron, Ohio; William E. Leahy, Washington, D. C. lawyer; Charles H. Silver, vice president of the American Woolen Co., New York; the Rev. Emmett M. Walsh, coadjutor bishop of Youngstown, Ohio; and Russell C. Leffingwell, former assistant secretary of the treasury and former Morgan Banking House partner.

In naming them, Mr. Truman told his news conference the group will have access to confidential files on federal employees on exactly the same basis as that afforded congressional committees which have looked into the records of government jobholders.

In reply to questions about how the new commission will operate, Mr. Truman first cited congressional precedent as the policy regarding secret files.

Then he declared that when the commission members want to look into a file, all they need to do is ask him and he will give them permission to see it.

Seeding Topic For Panel Here

65 Farmers in Attendance at Meet

Sixty-five farmers attended a meeting Thursday night in the Dayton Power and Light Co. auditorium to hear a panel discussion on "How To Establish A Good Grass Seeding".

This was one of a series of agronomy extension meetings held in the county. Delbert Binegar, chairman of the agronomy executive service in developing a better agronomy improvement program.

James Wagner, a farmer in Marion Township, was the moderator of the panel. Those assisting were Robert Haigler, Lester Jordan, Willard Bitzer and W. W. Montgomery.

Many good points were brought out by the panel on successful methods the panel members have employed for getting good results. The importance of proper liming and fertilization was stressed by all members. Proper grass mixtures was another point given emphasis. There is no one best mixture used in the county. There are several that have given desirable results.

Robert Owens explained the Trash-Mulch method. The importance of Ladino clover was also given much emphasis.

Robert Haigler discussed the Band Seeding method which he used last year. This is a recent improvement in the method of getting a better stand of grass seed. This has been developed by the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station during the past few years.

Delbert Binegar, chairman of the agronomy executive committee, explained the progress that this committee is making.

Melvin Helsel, soil conservationist, was a guest.

'Clues' Continue In Braddock Case

While so-called "clues" still trickle into official circles here, officers are following the policy announced early this week of not continuing an active search for Mrs. Minerva Braddock, who vanished in Cleveland Dec. 18.

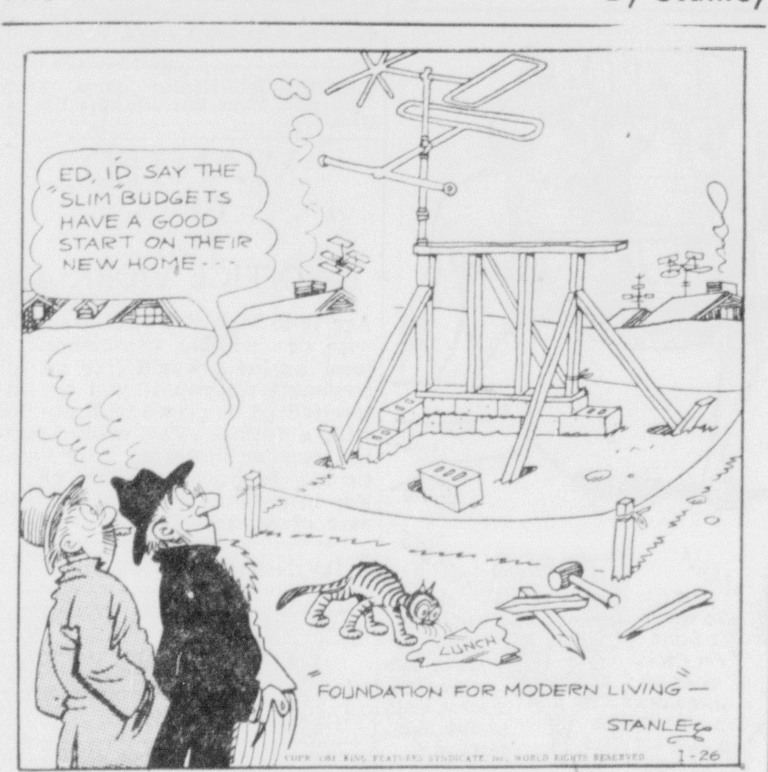

Officers are holding to the belief that she is still alive, and if any further active search is to be made for her, it should come through Cleveland officers.

So far as announced no relatives or friends have heard from her since she disappeared.

The sunflower is the state flower of Kansas.

Members of Company M, Ohio National Guard Unit here, will hold their annual banquet at 7:30 P. M. next Tuesday in the Armory here, according to Capt. Harold Finley, commander of the unit. There will be speakers on the program from the Guard headquarters in Columbus.

Allies Surge North

For 36 hours, all news of Allied activity in the western part of Korea had been blacked out by the U. S. eighth army.

But the curtain was lifted enough today to show that at least two UN patrols were working their way into the Red territory south of Seoul.

Reds Driven to Hills

Our patrol beat off a Red Chinese attack with bayonets. Tanks drove the Reds off a hill in another sector.

Naval guns of the U. S. heavy cruiser St. Paul and accompanying destroyers lighted up the Inchon Harbor and silenced Red batteries on Wolmi Island, off Inchon.

Navy, marine and air force planes pounded the whole Seoul area.

Warplanes, in fact, had a heavy day, blasting 33 towns in the Seoul area and hammering at two huge enemy road convoys winding down through the mountains in the Kumchon-Kaesong sectors north of Seoul.

The bayonet and hand to hand fighting took place in the vicinity of Suwon, 17 miles south of fire-blackened Seoul. After the doughboys drove off the attacking Reds, a Chinese bugle sounded a charge but no charge came.

Deadly Hide-and-Seek

It was a wary, deadly game of hide-and-seek all along the front for ground troops. Western area intelligence officers yesterday expressed the opinion the Red Chinese had made a large-scale withdrawal because of supply shortages, the cold weather or possibly for political reasons -- hoping a UN cease fire order.

The U. S. eighth army communique spoke of light contact with the enemy in the Osan, Suwon and Kumyangjang sectors, northwest of Wonju on the central Korean warfront, and southeast of Tanyang. Tanyang is 40 miles southeast of Wonju.

The communique said there was little or no contact on the east central front except a minor skirmish seven miles north of Yongwol, the Tungsten mining town retaken by the Allies some 14 miles east of Chechon.

More than 70 percent of the families in the United States own automobiles.

Baptists To Hold Special Services

The First Baptist Church announces that plans have been completed to hold a series of special Sunday evening services featuring the congregational singing of favorite gospel hymns and songs.

Loren E. Wilson has consented to lead in the "gospel song fests," beginning February 4 and continuing through the Lenten season.

Special interest will center around the gospel hymns, which were so popular at the turn of the century, at the height of the mass revival movement in our country.

Many of the hymns are now out of print, and members of the church are searching their attics for books containing these oldtime favorites. Not only the older songs will be used but the best of the newer ones will also be sung.

Renewed interest has been shown in many communities throughout our country in this type of singing in recent months. The public is invited to attend.

ViF Put on Show

Assistant House Democratic leader priest of Tennessee and five other representatives sang so well that Rayburn observed he'd "like to have that kind of harmony in the House".

Rep. Gore (D-Tenn.) who confessed that he never had a lesson had the crowd stomping feet with a hillbilly fiddling number.

His brother, he said, bought the fiddle at a "hock shop" but "forgot to pick up a lesson book". Harry McDonald, SEC chairman, sang "Wagon Wheels". Shortskirted capital matrons and their panting husbands danced the "Charleston".

Mme Henri Bonnet, wife of the French ambassador, staged a fashion show and then joined in a square dance with associate justice of the supreme court and Mrs. Douglas, secretary of agriculture and Mrs. Brannan; Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, wife of the former ambassador to Russia; and gray-haired retired Rear Admiral Emory S. Land.

Senator Gillette (D-Iowa) sang "Iowa". J. M. Elizalde, the Philippine ambassador, gave a piano solo. The Cuban ambassador doubled as comedian and guitar player.

There were lots more acts and actors, senators, generals commissioners and folks like that.

Future Teachers Plan Annual Banquet Here

Members of the Future Teachers of America met at the Washington C. H. High School library on Thursday to discuss plans for the annual Future Teachers banquet, to be held Feb. 8 in the school cafeteria.

Helen Louise Hynes was appointed chairman for the entertainment committee.

Jane Terrell, president, presided over the meeting. Later the meeting was turned over to Paddy Boso, who in return introduced Frank Krautwater, who presented an interesting biography.

Nine Deaths in County Blamed To TB in 1949

There were nine deaths due to tuberculosis in Fayette County in 1949, according to figures recently released by the Ohio Department of Health.

This is an increase of four over the previous year, the report shows. The reports are made a year late since all known TB cases must be carefully checked.

The tuberculosis association and the county health offices are continually on the lookout for people who are suspected of having TB, so that they can be cared for. In 1949 only one person died of tuberculosis that neither of the offices had any record of.

The report points out that these figures do not include the deaths of former residents who were, at the time of their death, in a mental or penal institution.

At the present time there is no indication as to what caused the increase in deaths during the year.
